The Javanese Perceptions of Landscape

PENERBIT UNIVERSITAS TRISAKTI

This book fulfils a promise: a promise to landscape architecture colleagues that the understanding that the writer gained through a doctoral study of Javanese culture would be shared with her colleagues in Asia Pacific and around the globe. The study enhances our knowledge and understanding of perceptions of landscape....It is the role of the landscape architect to conserve cultural landscapes as well as people's relationship with landscapes, as they perceive them. Dr Jusna Amin enriches our understanding of landscape perception and thus expands our professional knowledge.

Dr Diane Menzies - Immediate Past President of the International Federation of Landscape Architects (IFLA)

This is a highly original work and a fascinating thesis. It demonstrates familiarity with the relevant literature, is comprehensive, utilizes appropriate methods, presents and interprets original results, and draws conclusions which address the research questions.

(Examiners 2nd report, the University of Melbourne School of Graduate Studies, April 2002).

...This book is important and right in time, when concerns to the understanding of the earth, land, and landscape is getting greater in this global climate change era. It is also my hope, that Dr Jusna Amin would continue her active writing to produce other books in her field, landscape architecture. By doing so I am sure the students and people at large in Indonesia and international world would get the knowledge of this field of study much better and be benefitted by the activities and products of this so called 'green architecture' profession.
